TEAMS, or Tests of Engineering Aptitude, Mathematics and Science is a STEM-based competition designed to reward team work, problem solving, scientific writing, and engineering design. Students compete with other schools to apply science and engineering skills to solve real world problems. Past competition themes have included artificial intelligence and zoo design. MHS TEAMS has placed at the top of state and national competitions for several years in a row!

Do you like to act, sing and/or dance? Come try out for the school plays. MHS produces a fall drama or comedy for those interested in only acting. For those who want to act/sing/dance MHS produces a full-scale Spring musical. Auditions for the fall play are in October/November and auditions for the Spring musical are in January. Everyone is welcome to participate. Give it a try. Once selected for a role, members are given a rehearsal schedule and are required to attend all of the rehearsals specific to their roles. Leading roles are a major time commitment. Rehearsals are generally Monday-Thursday after school for two months prior to the performance, plus occasional Friday and Saturday rehearsals close to the performance date. Students are required to attend the entire "tech week" before the opening night performance when all of the show-elements are brought together (actors, singers, costumes, makeup, orchestra, scenery, lighting and sound).

ThinSat Club

The MHS ThinSat club runs in partnership with the aerospace engineering department at Princeton University to provide opportunities for students to experience real world engineering workflow from development, build, coding and finally a real world launch of pico-satellites that they have built going into ELEO or Extreme Low Earth Orbit! This is literally a once in a lifetime opportunity as many students even at large universities in grad school do not get the chance to launch something that they have touched with their own hands into space. The great part of the club is that we are locked in with the Antares Orbital ATK launch missions which go to the ISS or International Space Station and we hitch a ride on the NG missions attached to the Cygnus payload. The great part about this club also besides getting a chance to have something you created go into space, is that it is made for people who participate in other clubs, after school curricular activities and especially all student athletes who have limited time after school to begin with. If you are interested in pursuing any kind of engineering or just enjoy tinkering around, come check out our club google classroom or send an email to get started!

This is an extremely rigorous and demanding student run program. By using Adobe Photoshop and Adobe InDesign students will design the yearbook. There are opportunities for students to take pictures, write articles, plan the entire book, and market the product. Good for future business leaders.
